EXPLORE WITH NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC-

Because How You See It Matters

For more than 20 years, the unique collaboration between National Geographic and Lindblad Expeditions has defined modern expedition cruising, forging meaningful relationships between people and the planet through transformative travel experiences. Every voyage blends the legendary exploration spirit of National Geographic with Lindblad Expeditions' unmatched 60 years of expedition heritage.

SMALL SHIPS THAT TAKE YOU FARTHER

With more than 20 expedition and charter vessels, the fleet is among the largest and most varied in expedition cruising. Each small ship is specially designed to explore your destination—crafted for comfort, engineered for access and equipped to bring you up close to the remote and the remarkable.

TAKE GREAT PHOTOS WITH THE PROS

National Geographic Photographers have spent decades traveling the globe, capturing some of the world's most impactful images. They join every Antarctic expedition, along with a National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions certified photo instructor, to help travelers hone their camera skills in captivating places.

TRAVEL WITH A WORLD-CLASS TEAM

Voyages are led by veteran captains, seasoned guides and National Geographic Expedition Experts,* with 110+ team members contributing a decade or more of fleet experience.

Available on select departures.*

EXPLORE YOUR WAY, EVERY DAY

Itineraries feature a range of immersive activities that bring you into the pages of National Geographic magazine. All excursions are included unless otherwise noted, and each expedition offers options for every skill level so that you can explore your way—and at your own pace—every day.

LINDBLAD EXPEDITIONS

REVEALING UNDERSEA WONDERS

On most departures, an undersea specialist brings marine wonders to the surface by capturing and sharing underwater footage. During nightly recaps, the specialist interprets fascinating sea creatures and geological features, offering insights integral to the story of your destination.

INSPIRING THE NEXT GENERATION OF EXPLORERS

The National Geographic Explorers-in-Training program nurtures the next generation of global stewards in fun and fascinating places, including select departures in Antarctica. Led by certified field educators, this hands-on program teaches kids and teens to explore like scientists and tell the stories of their surroundings.

PIONEERING RESPONSIBLE EXPLORATION

The ships in the National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions fleet are designed to operate efficiently in some of the planet's most remote regions, leveraging nimble design and carefully planned itineraries to reduce environmental impact. Thoughtful choices on board—from eliminating guest-facing single-use plastics to reducing food waste and sourcing locally grown ingredients—help minimize the fleet's footprint while strengthening the communities it visits.

WHAT'S INCLUDED—AND MORE

To further enhance your journey, we also offer a range of optional customizations, including premium alcoholic beverages, spa treatments, additional excursions, photobooks and handcrafted keepsakes—so you can tailor the experience to your preferences.

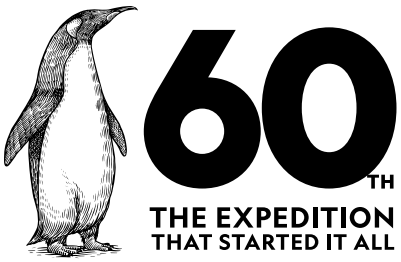

THE EXPEDITION THAT STARTED IT ALL

A LEGACY 60 YEARS IN THE MAKING

In 1966, Lars-Eric Lindblad brought the first tourists to Antarctica, laying the groundwork for a new way of experiencing the world: expedition cruising. His vision was simple yet profound—that immersive encounters with wild places could transform how people saw our planet and inspire a lasting commitment to protect it.

In 1979, his son Sven built upon that vision by founding what is now Lindblad Expeditions, carrying the spirit of exploration into new regions across the world's wildest seas and shores. Together, their pioneering legacies form the foundation of the company we are today: the leader in purposeful travel, driven by curiosity, respect for the natural world and an enduring dedication to discovery. As we celebrate 60 years of Antarctic exploration, that same pioneering spirit continues to guide every voyage we take across the Southern Ocean.

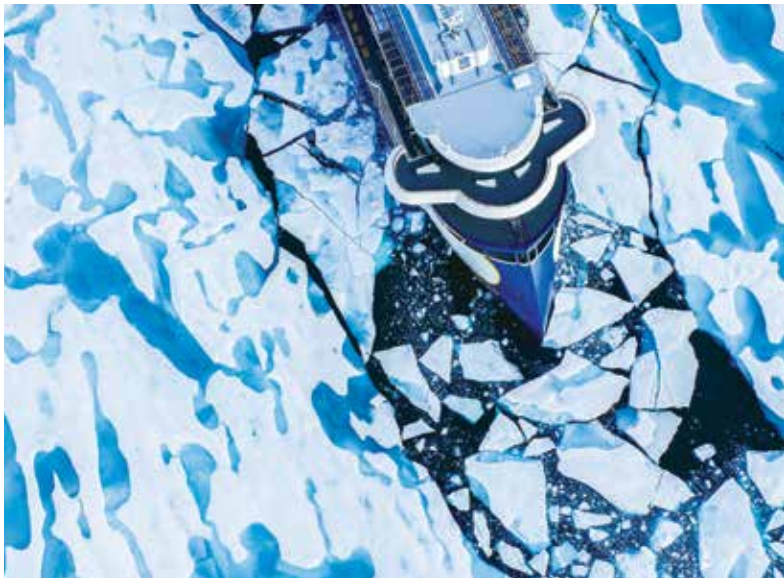

A pioneering legacy

Watch a short film featuring Lindblad Expeditions Founder Sven Lindblad as he reflects on 60 years of expedition cruising—and the spirit of discovery that is driving exploration into the future.

INNOVATION AT THE EDGE OF THE EARTH

Lindblad Expeditions has been redefining Antarctic travel since our earliest days on the continent—beginning when Lars-Eric commissioned the ice-strengthened M.S. Lindblad Explorer, the first ship built expressly for polar discovery.

In the years that followed, we introduced countless "firsts": co-founding the International Association of Antarctica Tour Operators (IAATO), which advocates for safe and sustainable travel on the continent; pioneering polar kayaking and undersea exploration; and developing advanced navigation systems. Each breakthrough builds on a long tradition of ingenuity in polar exploration.

EXPERTISE IS EVERYTHING

The National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions "ice master" captains are among the most experienced in the industry, with hundreds of collective voyages to Antarctica. They adeptly read the ice, weather and wildlife conditions that shape each day's adventure—landing in hidden coves and navigating shifting floes to reveal the continent's untold stories. Their mastery ensures not only exceptional safety, but access to places few have ever been, creating the kind of authentic, unscripted moments that define true expedition travel.

EXPLORATION WITH PURPOSE

For decades, Lindblad Expeditions has explored Antarctica with purpose: to foster understanding and inspire stewardship. Ships serve as platforms for research and conservation, supporting scientists and initiatives that advance knowledge of this fragile region.

To witness Antarctica is to feel its power—and to recognize a shared responsibility to preserve it. Every guest becomes part of a living legacy of exploration and protection that continues to shape the White Continent.

THE POLAR FLEET

BUILT FOR AWE

The powerful ships in the National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions polar fleet bring you directly—and safely—into the heart of Antarctica's icy wilds. Each small, nimble vessel was designed to deliver the finest in polar exploration and is helmed by a veteran ice master captain who possesses extensive experience navigating Antarctic waters.

This fusion of advanced technology and unrivaled expertise allows National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions to stay flexible, go farther and ultimately deliver the most ambitious itineraries available at the bottom of the globe.

A DAY IN THE LIFE

ON EXPEDITION IN ANTARCTICA

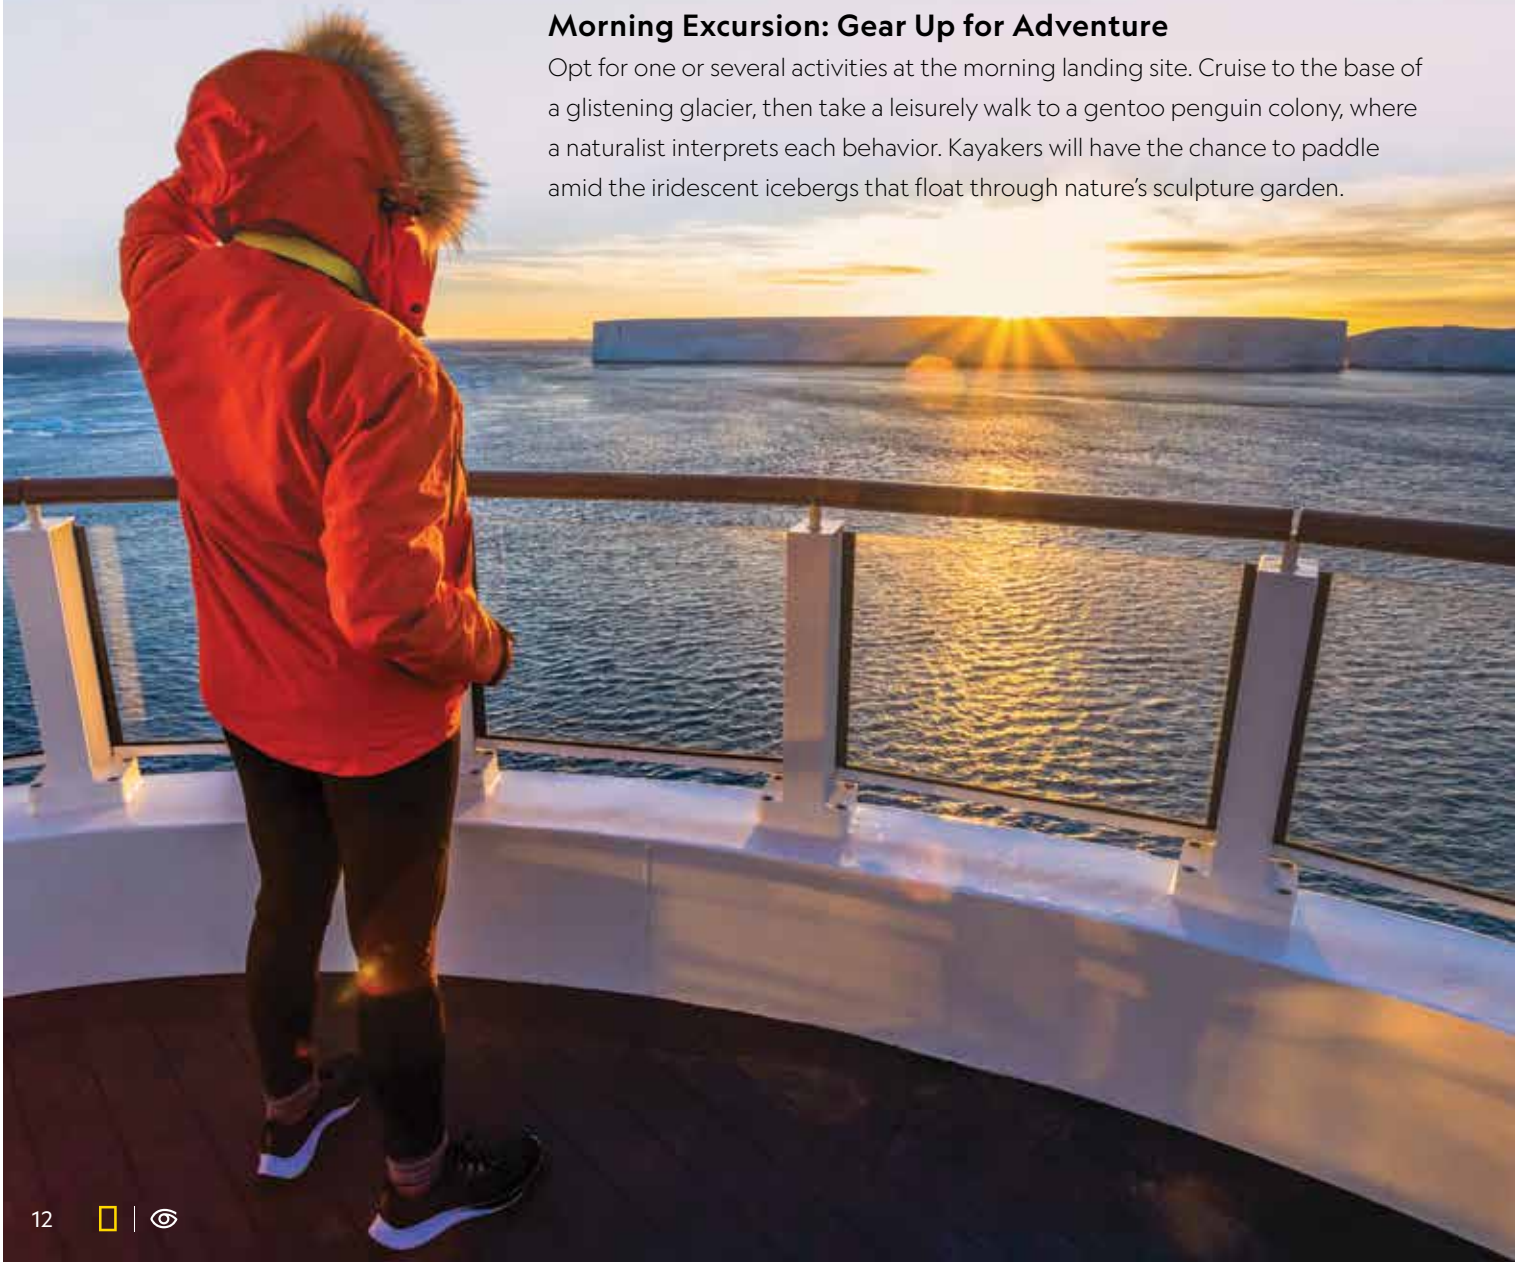

Each day in Antarctica is different, and when you explore on a voyage with National Geographic-Lindblad Expeditions, there is always a variety of enticing adventures on offer—whether you wish to pack your day with active excursions or enjoy more leisurely explorations.

Early Risers: Wake Up to Icy Views

Head to the bow and soak in the icy stillness of the seventh continent before the rest of the ship awakens. You're likely to meet a naturalist who aids in the search for wildlife, including orcas, humpbacks and wandering albatrosses.

Morning Excursion: Gear Up for Adventure

Opt for one or several activities at the morning landing site. Cruise to the base of a glistening glacier, then take a leisurely walk to a gentoo penguin colony, where a naturalist interprets each behavior. Kayakers will have the chance to paddle amid the iridescent icebergs that float through nature's sculpture garden.

Lunch Is Served

Select from a menu of diverse options that can be tailored to your taste and dietary preferences. Many lunches start with a robust soup to ward off the Antarctic chill.

Talks and Photo Tips

Attend a talk in the lounge by your National Geographic Photographer, or take advantage of the ship's amenities: Read up on Ernest Shackleton in the library, test out high-tech cameras and lenses from the complimentary photo gear locker or visit the open Bridge to chat with the captain about the unique challenges of polar navigation.

Afternoon Excursion: Into the Wild

In Antarctica, you'll discover something unexpected daily. In the early season, the captain may disembark travelers on the fast ice so you can walk across the frozen sea. Opt to take the polar plunge, followed by warm blankets and steaming hot chocolate provided by the crew. Young travelers in the National Geographic Explorers-in-Training program may be invited to participate in a plankton tow.

Ready for Recap

Meet in the lounge over drinks and hors d'oeuvres, and settle in for the nightly recap, featuring presentations and slideshows on the day's adventures and a preview of tomorrow's activities.

Dinner at the Chef's Table

Every voyage includes special dining events, such as barbecues or guided wine tastings. Those traveling aboard National Geographic Endurance or National Geographic Resolution are invited to a special private dinner that features a refined seven-course tasting menu.

Midnight Zodiac Cruise

In November and December, the evening sun often paints glacial hues in brilliant pinks and the skies a fiery orange. On nights like this, your expedition leader may invite guests for a midnight Zodiac cruise to soak up the spectacular scenery.

WHAT TO EXPECT

SEASONS IN ANTARCTICA

No matter when you visit, the grandeur of Antarctica is always on display—but every month is unique in terms of weather and wildlife. This guide reveals what makes each special.

Video: Naturalist Rich Kirchner describes each Antarctic travel month in detail.

Kayakers photograph an iceberg.

November: Premium conditions for photography.

December: Exceptional undersea footage.

NOVEMBER

Landscapes & Seascapes: Shores are blanketed in virgin snow, and castles of ice are awash in orange and pink during the midnight sunset: November is a landscape photographer's dream.

Wildlife Highlights: It's mating season for gentoo, Adélie and chinstrap penguins, and colonies are a flurry of courtship activity, with some individuals already incubating eggs. Elephant seals have come ashore to birth their pups.

Essential Experience: When conditions are right, the captain can "park" the ship in the fast ice and disembark travelers for cross-country skiing, snowshoeing or hiking across the frozen sea.

DECEMBER

Landscapes & Seascapes: The midnight sun returns, and the summer melt is in its earliest stages—icebergs are still massive, creating a seascape that resembles a natural sculpture garden.

Wildlife Highlights: Orcas and humpbacks abound, and penguin rookeries are bustling in preparation for the mid-month chick hatching. Clear waters allow undersea specialists to document an array of surprisingly colorful crustaceans, anemones and other creatures.

Essential Experience: Kayaking amid towering icebergs.

Cross-country skiing, exclusively available in November.

December sunset.

JANUARY

Landscapes & Seascapes: The warmer weather triggers glaciers to calve thunderous chunks of ice into Antarctic seas.

Wildlife Highlights: Newborn penguins are chasing down their parents for food. Adventurous chicks also mean active predators, particularly the prehistoric-looking leopard seal. Leopard, crabeater and Weddell seals have birthed their doe-eyed pups, which can be spotted snoozing on ice floes or bobbing between bergy bits.

Essential Experience: Zodiac cruising under the shimmering light of summer's midnight sun.

January: Spot newborn penguin chicks.

FEBRUARY

Landscapes & Seascapes: The pack ice has weakened, expanding the boundaries for exploration.

Wildlife Highlights: February is prime time for whales—minke, sperm, southern right and humpback whales are all abundant. Without the pressing need to hunt, these highly intelligent cetaceans can flex their curiosity—sometimes swimming right up to the boat.

Essential Experience: Watching penguin chicks fledge into icy waters.

February: Whales are plentiful.

ANTARCTICA, PATAGONIA AND THE SOUTH ATLANTIC ISLES

Venturing to the bottom of the globe is a chance to discover the world's last great wildernesses, where whales swim, penguins flock and albatrosses soar. Explore Antarctica, Patagonia or the wild isles of the South Atlantic on voyages informed by six decades of sailing these untamed waters.
